Fox News Caters To White People

What About The Rest Of Us

Why do Let's face it, I am not a fan of Fox News. The few times I force myself to watch, I end up with that feeling white privilege prevails and the lies that they tell makes this seem like a terrible place to live for people of color. Just like with everything else the white man rules. Their broadcasts are unevenly tilted to project people of color in negative ways. Fox commentators are just hate filled people. Every news story has the great white people mad because the others, brown and black have taken something from them or have violated their living space. Take the last eight years under President Obama. The majority of press televised on Fox News about the first African American President portrayed negative stories. Now that their candidate has won what they have been trying to steal for so long, you would think that

Fox News would be singing happy songs. Ah but, not so fast they are still miserable. I watch commentator after commentator twist and turn facts making Donald Trump someone that I don't recognize. All I know is that Fox News usually portrays white people like they can do no wrong. Take for instance the two undocumented immigrants who allegedly raped a 14-year-old girl in the bathroom at their school. I certainly don't condone their actions, if they did it, but, just like the humiliation of Hillary Clinton, the negative story is running over and over so to say that the story is overexposed is an understatement. Yet, they continue to run the story. What do they want? Do they want hate crimes against innocent black and brown people? They have the nerve to complain that they are the only ones running the story. They are upset because in their view not enough stations are presenting the story. I say all that to say what about the white dude that went to New York City looking for Black men to kill. Well, my point in all of this, only a few words on Fox News. Maybe a little excerpt here or a couple of words on the crawl at the bottom of the television screen. But since this was a white dude. A man who committed such a heinous crime against an innocent Black Man, how could they not run this story in the same vein as the story about the two immigrants? I know why, because he was a white man, that's why. Crimes against the others are not as important as crimes against whites. Fox News people of color demand equal time for the crimes against us.
