

Local Politics Matter

If You are Scared...You Shouldn't be a Police Officer

Scardy Cat!

OMG...here we go again, this time it was a white boy. He was just a smart mouthed teenager. I saw the tape it was murder. Just because the man in blue pulls you over doesn't mean you have to die. I believe this officer set him up. He just didn't know it was a white boy. He knew he had his high beams on. In his mind he's telling himself I am the police. I dare you to blink your headlights at me. Well the next one who blinks at me, I'm pulling them over cuz I got this uniform. Why didn't the officer wait until the boy was calm? He posed no threat. Then is it okay to kill someone just because they don't jump when you say jump? These police officers always go to one of the default statements. I thought he was going for my gun or I was scared for my life. Well if you cannot manage being scared for your life you should not be a police officer, end of story. Because being scared for your life is part of the job. It makes no sense for an officer to say that same old bull crap again. Mike Brown, Walter Scott, and this white boy, give me a break. Maybe things will start to happen now that a white teenager was killed. It's not my imagination. Some police officers just have a license to kill under the blue coat of armor. If you cannot manage being scared then you should not be a police officer.

Share Your Comments

Return to LPM

