Once Again

This Is All On White People

When Donald Trump announced his run for the Presidency he immediately followed with a diatribe against the entire Mexican Race. He called them rapists and drug dealers while accusing the Government of Mexico of sending their worst citizens to the United States. In the America that I was sold on these comments would have immediately disqualified him as a candidate. As if this wasn't bad enough later in his run for President a tape was released showing Donald Trump bragging about assaulting women and grabbing them in the most private place. Again, in the America that I was sold on this would have immediately disqualified him. In between these incidents Donald Trump ran a campaign that was high on name calling and demeaning behavior while being especially low on substance and real policy. The one thing that Trump proved during his Presidential campaign was that he was the most unqualified candidate in the entire race. The clear advantage that he held was that he is a rich, bombastic, white male. For some reason there is a segment of white Americans who are enamored with white males who exhibit these traits. Having worked for a Fortune 500 company for most of my 30 year professional career his behavior is not foreign to me. There is something about bombastic and vile behavior that stokes the spirit of the white race. It is barbaric in a sense and I believe that it can be tied directly to their history of raping, pillaging and forcibly inhabiting Countries in which they have an interest. Why is this personality type so fascinating to those of the Caucasian race? Why does Donald Trump appeal to the most tribal instincts of his supporters? Regardless of how you answer these questions there is one fact that is quite clear. If you talk about a travel ban on Muslims, immigrant families seeking asylum being ripped apart, the rise in hate crimes, or a rapidly widening income gap between the haves and the have nots, this is all on "White People". They are showing us who they really are and how far they will go to protect what they have stolen. We continue to buy into the America that they sold us on while they continue to rely on their base instincts to rape and pillage. If this Country is going to live up to the ideals that White America continues to sell us on then we have to stand up and knock them the hell out of the way. Words will not do it and being civil is exactly what they want. No the best way to handle a bully is an old fashioned punch in the mouth. Let's not be mistaken this bully will fight back but he is not ready for a long and protracted fight. It is time for all of us to plant our feet, take our position, and fight like hell.
